

Discusses Observations Of A School Master

that two giants have come into our lives, Goliaths that constantly seek to change our opinions and to influence our thoughts and our actions. I refer, of course, to the radio and the motion pictures.

"Daily we are encouraged, urged, and cajoled into buying this or that brand of toothpaste, to eat a certain particular hot cereal, a certain cold one 'sure to be better.' Our children are enthralled or emotionally upset by the unbelievably horrible adventures of a boy hero.

"On the other hand a great orchestra leader directs a regular series of orchestra programs designed to increase the enjoyment of young people for the best music of the ages. A great religious leader speaks on Sunday afternoon or a president in the quiet of a late evening gives an expectant nation an account of his stewardship.

"The school must use it to its advantage. It must not fight it necessarily but rather use it for all the influences for good which it possesses. The radio can help bring the world, personalities, history in the making, right into the class room. The school can, I believe, although we know very little about how it can be done, teach young people how to listen to the radio, where to find the best programs and by thus developing tastes or rather demands be in a position to insist that certain things be done in radio broadcasting that need to be done.

"People will listen to radio all of their lives. It will constantly be a most important factor in influencing the life of our nation, international understanding and the like, and foolish and negligent will be as teachers and parents if we fail to use it in shaping our course for the development of future citizens."

Speaking of the other giant—motion picture—he declared that it is a fine thing that our Catholic friends have been joined by other denominations in seeking better pictures.

"This movement has already had its effect upon the type of motion pictures produced as any study of the fall and winter programs will indicate," Dr. Cressman declared.

"All of opportunities for promoting international understanding, of widening the horizons of youth to an unlimited extent it is something which must be used to further the attainment of the objectives which we have set up for our young people.

"In the Doylestown school system we have set out upon a definite program to use the motion picture as an adjunct to accomplishing our aims—in health, in science, in geography, in all the important social studies and in other fields. We also try to bring before the pupils reports of motion pictures which are approved by certain groups and to urge them to see those that will fit in with the work of the various curricular and extra-curricular subjects, but most of all we want to produce tastes and desires for what is good.

"The school must make use of those agencies that are bound to influence one way or the other the lives of every living person. If it neglects them, much of the work it is trying to do is likely to be undone. We cannot tell youth what to do about the problems of tomorrow for we do not even know what those problems will be but we can direct them in habits of getting information and of forming sound conclusions."

Dr. Cressman spoke briefly on the importance of a discriminate reading of the daily press both in the life of a boy or girl and in the life of an adult. He said that a study of the reading opportunities and reading habits of children of the upper high school age will indicate that there is coming into their homes in many cases, a local newspaper, in a few cases a metropolitan daily and in still smaller number a fine piece of outstanding journalism like the New York Times.

"These are certainly the ones that will influence their opinions and to a certain extent their civic actions," he said. The wise teacher today realizes that he must stimulate the reading of the daily newspaper and magazines as a habit and in the second place, he must try to see that the reading is done with discrimination—reading below the headlines."

Dr. Cressman said that in all the social studies at Doylestown High, emphasis is put upon current events.

The speaker dwelt briefly on discipline and its real meaning.

"Discipline in a school organization has two specific purposes, first to make possible the most efficient functioning of the organizations, so that there may come to the greatest number of individuals the greatest good and secondly so that there may be developed in each individual a high degree of responsibility and self control. Any other type of discipline or discipline with any other purpose is of little worth.

"By far the greatest percentage of boys and girls will respond to sense of fairness and justice. Only in relatively few cases is the drastic punitive type of discipline necessary. A school like a government ought to make it easy for young people to do right and hard for them to do wrong.

"To say that the school must be a militaristic formal type of organization is an admission of the failure of democracy. No dictatorship, be it Fascism, Hitlerism or what not, demands individual initiative and wise self control but in a democracy, if it is to persist, it is vital. Surely the school, democracy's agent and incubator, can do no less than to recognize this fact and chart its course accordingly."

INDO-VIN WAS WORTH FORTUNE

"Is Greatest I Ever Heard Of"
He Says; Like Different Man Entirely

"INDO-VIN has been worth a FORTUNE to me. I'm not the same man at all since I got it," said Mr. W. H. Wolf, of 405 Duncan Street, Washington, Pa., while talking just a few days ago about this new, scientific mixture of Medicinal Plants, known as Indo-Vin, which is now being introduced to the public daily here in Bristol at The Victor Cut Rate drug store.

"I kept getting worse with my stomach all the time and Mr. Wolf finally got to where I was in CONSTANT pain and misery," continued Mr. Wolf. "My meals simply would not digest AT ALL, but would lay there in my stomach organs and sour and turn to gas and I'd keep belching up a sour, bitter substance, and I had to take laxatives CONTINUALLY for constipation. I was always nervous and restless and I never knew what it was to get a good night of rest.

"I tried a lot of medicines but got NO RELIEF until I found Indo-Vin and three bottles of it have changed me entirely. My food never turns to gas and bloating inside of me any more and I can eat a hearty meal without suffering. It regulated my bowels so that I never need anything for them at all and I never have the nervous spells like I had before. This medicine is a 'wonder' and I gladly endorse it."

efforts of the Government to relieve unemployment and to prevent human suffering, our problems are still far from being solved. The acceptance of St. Paul's challenge therefore seems so idealistic that multitudes of people feel it is something like the pot of Gold at the end of the rainbow, quite beyond them.

But we will do well to think seriously and soberly about the words of St. Paul, for he has stated a great truth of life that we sadly need to learn. The Record of course shows that Paul was not only a preacher of the doctrine of giving Thanks in everything, but he also was one who literally lived it. Take any page you will from his life. We find him in Prison with his freedom denied him, we find him in Court on trial without friends, we find him suffering Poverty, a physical infirmity and every other kind of hardship, but we never find him, no matter what his circumstances were without his Hymn of Thanksgiving. He was sick, unappreciated, alone, imprisoned, stoned, beaten and at last put to death, but no one ever killed his gratitude. In everything he gave thanks, he even counted it gain to suffer and die for Christ.

Thanksgiving to God, for most people today, has come to occupy a very small place in their lives, for the present day maxim for the average individual is to Take all that he can get and then complain because he does not get more.

St. Paul's challenge, in everything give Thanks is one which takes in a lot of territory in life, for it includes everything, the good and the bad, the feasts and the fasts, the sunny days and the cloudy and stormy ones. In fact, the venerable Apostle points out a truth that most people overlook, namely, it is impossible to be a Christian without having in one's heart a spirit of Thanksgiving.

Everyone, of course, knows that it is not difficult to be thankful when circumstances are kind; when flowers adorn our pathway and friends appreciate us; but St. Paul sets the standard far beyond that.

St. James re-echoes the same sentiment that Paul had when he says My Brethren count it all joy, when ye fall into divers Temptations. Most people are supremely glad to get out of difficulties, but to count it joy when one encounters Temptations is an extremely difficult thing. But certainly this fact is true, every temptation we encounter, every hardship and trial that comes to us, is a testing of our manhood and womanhood. We would be weak puppets indeed, if there were no trials or tests in life.

Our present age is one when we are individually challenged to show how real our moral convictions are? How staple are our standards of decency? Complaints about our conditions, is evidence of smallness and weakness of character, but making the best out of life is Christian, and you and I should Thank God today, that as Americans we have such a noble heritage, that we can face the perplexities of modern life and show some real manhood in doing so.

God's standards of manhood and decency and citizenship are high, but they are not too high, for we can all reach them, even though we are beset with trials and difficulties. Any honest reflection about life, will clearly show us, that there never are any times when everything comes to us "Buttered side up" if I may use a common expression. Sooner or later everyone encounters the rough with the smooth, and ones joys are always intermingled with sorrows. Pair weather does not continue indefinitely, for storms do arise. The old proverb, "All sunshine makes a desert" is eternally true in life.

We are seriously mistaken if we think that Thankfulness is dependent upon happy outward circumstances. The most grateful and the happiest people on earth are those who never had all the luxuries of life. Thankfulness is an inner condition. Riches always give people a false independence, and it is once sense of need in life that makes him grateful for what he has.

In everything give Thanks, says St. Paul, and what a wealth of meaning his words have for us today. Surely as a nation we need to stem the tides of self-pity and become conscious of the needs of others. Most travellers abroad on their return to America usually say as soon as they come home, "Thank God I am an American," and while that saying is somewhat Pharaical in flavor, yet from it, we are made more conscious of God's bounty to us as a nation.

We must recognize however that privilege involves responsibility and that America has a moral responsibility to the world. I love to think of the symbolism of the American Flag for the Red stands for courage, the White for Purity, the Blue for Honesty, and the Stars are perpetual reminders that we are to lead others by our lives to Christ.

If ever there was a time when our nation needed courageous men, and clean and pure men, and honest men, and men who radiated on the world, a radiant attractiveness that would allure Men to Christ it is now. What a priceless heritage is ours, and what a magnificent opportunity is ours also.

In everything give Thanks, says St. Paul. It is easy to forget our inheritance, it is easy to be blind to our opportunities. We are the men and women that we are today, because of the sterling qualities of manhood and womanhood which our forefathers had. We will be unfair to our future citizens if we give them weaker foundations than were given to us.

Seriously we need to reconsecrate ourselves to God, in true humility and in deep thankfulness to Him. How better can I close than with the words of that immortal Hymn:

"Faith of our Fathers, faith and prayer,
Shall win our country back to Thee,
And through the truth, that comes from God,
Our land shall then indeed be free,
Faith of our Fathers, Holy Faith,
We will be true to thee, till death."

God help us to be true to the faith of our fathers, and in everything, Give Thanks.

DELAY FUNERALS

Harrisburg, Nov. 30—Authorities of Carlisle and Altoona today were requested by Commander Cecil Wilbur, deputy superintendent of State police, to delay burial of the five victims of Pennsylvania's strange death mystery, pending the arrival of R. U. Noakes, a brother of the man found dead, from California. Noakes was expected to take-off by airplane today for Pennsylvania, to prove the identification of the victims as his brother, Elmo J. Noakes and the latter's three daughters and a niece. The American Legion Post, No. 101, of Carlisle, had made plans to bury the three little girls with simple, but impressive, services.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS OVER MORRISVILLE; SCORE, 13-7

Morrisville High School's unblemished record was smeared here yesterday when Bristol High's gridlers notched a 13-7 victory over their traditional rivals. It was the final contest of the year for the Bulldogs.

Jim Spencer kicked off for Bristol. Ted Kupiec took the ball on his 35 and fumbled, Bristol recovering. Sam Ross skirted his right end to the two-yard strike. Joe Conti went over the line on the next play by smashing the line.

On Sunday, the Purple and Gold will meet the Bristol Cast-Offs, play-
